Newkirk Ventures is a real estate holding and development company with diverse business and real estate interests. Mark Newkirk is well known in Tampa business circles for having a reputation for staying ahead of the pack, and putting together good business deals. Newkirk had one of the first visions for Tampa's now red-hot Channelside District that has paved the way for some of the region's and nation's most reputable developers. It is under the auspices of Newkirk's Meridian Lofts project that he continues to be a major partner in further construction in this district and others throughout the Tampa Bay area. The company's early success has led to greater opportunities, including the building of two luxury waterfront mid-rises along the Inter-coastal waterway in Clearwater, Fla. These projects and several others are quickly earning the company a reputation for being a leader in Tampa's redevelopment.
